Quality control specialist

Hello, I'm nwigweani chidinma, a dedicated food scientist with a Bs.c from University of Nigeria nsukka. Over the past 1 year, I've collaborated with industry giants like seven up bottling company where I did my six months industry training learning the importance of quality control before production, during production and after production to achieve a wholesome product. During my final year in school I worked on creating a new breakfast cereal that is rich in protein and also emulates the physical qualities of cornflake. I have done a lot of research in this. I'm also a fashion designer.
