

Application Letter

I am writing to express my interest in the position of an English to Oromo. With my strong language skills, cultural understanding, and translation expertise, I believe I can make a valuable contribution to your team and assist in bridging the language gap between English and Oromo.

As a native Oromo speaker with fluency in English, I have developed a deep understanding of both languages and their respective cultures. I have honed my translation skills through extensive experience in translating various types of content, including documents, articles, websites, and more. My goal is to ensure accurate and culturally appropriate translations that effectively convey the intended message to the Oromo-speaking audience.

I am well-versed in different domains and subject matters, including but not limited to legal, medical, technical, and general texts. I have a keen eye for detail and a strong commitment to delivering high-quality translations that maintain the original meaning, tone, and context of the source material.

Furthermore, I am a reliable and professional individual who understands the importance of meeting deadlines and maintaining confidentiality. I am dedicated to providing exceptional customer service and building strong relationships with clients. I am always open to feedback and strive to continuously improve my translation skills to better serve the needs of those I work with.

Thank you for considering my application. I have attached my resume for your review. I would welcome the opportunity to discuss further how my skills align with the requirements of the position. Please feel free to contact me at your convenience.

Yours sincerely,

Lami Fekadu Temesgen
